Lab Hours/Week: 0
OJT Hours/Week: .
Prerequisites: None
Corequisites: None

MnTC Goals: Goal 05 - Hist/Soc/Behav Sci, Goal 07 - Human Diversity

This course will explore the history of American Indians' relations with Anglo Americans, dating from the 1600s to the present, in the region now covering the United States. In doing so, it will ask students to consider how this history shaped American society. This course will focus on the issues of contact, Native opposition to colonization, intercultural understanding and misunderstanding, and assimilation. It will also analyze the effects of the US government's policies confronting Native Americans, as well as how Native people creatively resisted, accommodated, and adapted to their changing realities to preserve their autonomy and cultural identities. Students will study the causes and effects of the French and Indian War, the creation of pan-tribal alliances, the Indian Removal Act, boarding schools and allotment, the Red Power Movement, and other events that shaped Native American history. [Core Curriculum Goal Area(s) 5 & 7]; [Nisidotaading Course Requirement]

D. LEARNING OUTCOMES (General)
   1. recognize and examine the key people, events, and social processes that shaped American history through the Civil War. In doing so, they will empathize with the diverse perspectives of the cultural groups that have shaped American history, especially those groups that were marginalized by historical social structures and institutions.
   2. develop critical thinking, speaking, reading, and writing skills. They will analyze and evaluate the interpretations of past events found in primary and secondary sources and formulate their own interpretations in writing and discussion. In doing so, the students will both evaluate historical significance and create their own explanations of historical causation.
   3. in both writing and discussion, students will describe and compare the cultural identities and experiences of the diverse peoples who have shaped American history. In doing so, students will examine how and why these cultural perspectives have both changed over time and contributed to America's political, social, and economic systems.
   4. construct sound historical arguments. They will learn the research and argumentation skills that historians use to interpret the past.
