MnTC Goals: Goal 05 - Hist/Soc/Behav Sci, Goal 09 - Ethical/Civic Resp

This course uses popular culture entertainment to introduce historical research methods and examine questions of ethical use of history. We will look at how history is portrayed and presented in diverse forms of popular culture entertainment, such as film, novels, comics, etc. We will also look at how popular culture reflects the social and cultural values of the audience it entertains. As we examine the ways history is leveraged as a source of entertainment, each student will develop their own views on what is considered ethical use of history, and what is considered abuse of history.

Students need to students complete a 1000-level history course prior to enrolling in this course.

B. COURSE EFFECTIVE DATES: 05/01/2011 - Present

C. OUTLINE OF MAJOR CONTENT AREAS

1. The course will select a number of popular entertainment media (such as films, novels, comics, etc) to be determined by the instructor that claim to depict a particular historical period such as Ancient Rome, America during the Civil Rights Movement, etc.
2. Media should depict historical events/periods that are at least five-ten years in the past at the time the media was produced. Media can represent as many or as few historical periods as determined by the instructor.
3. Students should read/view the media and then use alternative sources to learn about the historical period depicted in the film as well as the historical period in which the media was produced. For example, if the instructor chose the film Spargatus, students should learn both about the early Roman Empire and about the United States in the 1960s.
4. Alternative sources may include (but are not limited to) classroom lecture, assigned textbooks, internet resources, and/or journal articles.
