MnTC Goals: Goal 06 - Humanities/Fine Arts, Goal 07 - Human Diversity

This course meets Minnesota Transfer Curriculum (MnTC) goal areas 6 and 7. This course will explore the evolution of the American novel from the beginning of the twentieth century to the end. Analysis of a broad range of American novels will allow students to develop an understanding of the literary, political, historical, and social contexts that have fashioned the novel's form and content in the United States. Students will examine how these selected American novels both shaped and responded to the contexts in which they were produced, helping students to sharpen the ability to read, comprehend, and interpret a literary work as well as to gain a general knowledge of the significant cultural, political, philosophical, and literary movements of the twentieth century. Prerequisite: READ0900.
